Maller Baroque Brass Instruments is dedicated to making authentic brass instruments. Founder David L. Maller, a protégé of the late, legendary instrument maker Ronald K. Collier, carefully hand-crafts each instrument using traditional techniques. This craftsmanship creates instruments that are easier to play and also produces a genuine, historic sound in comparison to their contemporary machine-produced baroque counterparts.

Maller Baroque Brass Instruments currently offers a natural trumpet designed by David Maller with the 17th century style bell flair, a copy of the trumpet by Johann Leonhard Ehe II (1720), and a full line of sackbuts. The Maller line also offers instruments from several periods. In addition to historic hand-made reproductions from several periods, the Maller line offers traditional cornets as well as modern trumpets & trombones that take advantage of combining old-world handcrafting methods with the most precise machine manufacturing techniques available today.
